A TOUCH OF LOVE

A BIG WINNER AT GOHOME AWARDS 2016

PREVIEW OF NAPA SHOW FLAT – SAVOUR
THE GOODNESS OF LIFE

A Touch of Love

There is an age-old tradition where people predict their children’s future by the objects they’ll grab – swords indicate physical prowess; a seal reveals a career as an official; jewels predict a future of wealth. Nowadays, there is a more scientific way to predict our future, by our fingerprints.

Future is in Your Hands

“Formed during the foetus’ 13 to 26 weeks of development, fingerprints already planted the seeds to the child’s potential.” said fingerprint analyst Ellen Mok, founder of MIQI. Though she adds that humans are 35% by inborn and 75% by nurture, fingerprints on our fingers are linked to the 10 regions of the brains which could foresee children’s future development; thumbs left and right reveal social skills and self discipline, respectively; indexes represent spatial conception and logic; middle fingers indicate muscle memory and creativity; ring fingers show musical inclinations and language; while pinkies tell aesthetics and attention to detail.

Which animal is your personality most alike?

To better convey her message, Ellen categorises 14 kinds of fingerprints into seven animals such as ox, peacock, monkey, bat, cat, lion and dog to represent each of these shapes and traits. For example, the ox is hardworking and practical; yet the monkey is spritely and the lion has superb leadership skills. These seven animals were meticulously selected to best represent their corresponding personalities.

There’s no “good” or “bad”

Though we can’t change our genes, fingerprint analysis helps individuals – especially children – to nurture their potential through ways to which they best respond. For example: a child who has a follower-type personality can be helped with encouragement and companionship. “There is no good or bad personalities, just how to develop and reflect the dominant of these personalities.” Ellen added.

Know your beloved

Aside from hosting workshops and classes, Ellen has analysed the fingerprints of a number of celebrity families, including the modelling couple, Jocelyn Luko and Anthony Sandstrom. The results not only allowed them to gain a better understanding of themselves (Luko is an expressive and righteous peacock on the outside and a perfectionist Lion on the inside while Sandstorm is a playful monkey and a loyal dog) but also a better knowledge of one another so to build a healthier, flourishing relationship.

Collaboration with Chocolatier

As Chinese New Year and Valentine’s Day rolls around, Ellen was invited by Godiva to head their “A Touch of Love” campaign, whereby fingerprint-profiling technologies will be placed at their shops. Guests can get their fingerprints analysis to learn more about themselves and their beloved. The chocolatier will even pair their candies to guests’ individual traits.

CITY TRANSFORMATION

PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION

攝影展覽

Kowloon East has witnessed Hong Kong's evolution from an industrial city to an international metropolis: Kai Tak Airport saw sentimental goodbyes during the migration wave and countless factory workers made their humble contributions to our city's developments.

Today, the area evolves into a CBD2 comprising residential and corporate skyscrapers, new and repurposed alike, alongside buzzing art and cultural hubs, all thanks to the government's "Energizing Kowloon East" initiative. Kowloon East has flourished into an urban oasis where a number of multinational corporations, small and medium enterprises, artists and creative industries proudly call home. For Hong Kongers young and old, Kowloon East continues to hold an irreplaceable sentimental value.
