

MONGOLIA & KENYA NATURE PHOTOGRAPHY SHARING

Travel has become an imperative part to our daily life: imagine observing wild life, jiving to Mother Nature's pulse, photographing the beauty of nature's bounty as well as understanding local cultures and the value of sustainable travel. Held by director of Eco Institute Samson So, the sharing session introduced his experience in Kenya, wild-life and bird-watching skills, photography know-how along with his acclaimed work. Mew Chu, meanwhile, shared his trips to Mongolia. Participants have the chance to appreciate the National Geographic Wheelock Youth Photo Competition Winners' Exhibition after the seminar.
